A WARD OF UNCLE SAM.

Montana Volunteer Recovers from Wound in Spanish War.

Thomas P. Dunn, a native of Montana, who, as a member of the First Montana Volunteers in the Spanish-American war, was shot through the head at Calococan, will report to the War Department as a ward of Uncle Sam.

While Dunn lay in the hospital ward near the battlefield where he fell, no attention was paid him, as he was given up for dead. He was later noticed by the attending surgeon, who proceeded to save his life. A Mauser bullet had lodged in his temple. His recovery is considered remarkable, owing to the nature of the wound, which is almost invariably fatal.

Dunn has completely lost his sense of taste, however, and the sight of his right eye. He is now in Portland, Ore., and will report to Washington as soon as he can cover the distance, as he must undergo the examination required by the Surgeon General's Office.

Return to Mare Island.

Orders were issued yesterday by the Navy Department to the cruisers Colorado, California, and Pennsylvania to proceed to the Mare Island Navy Yard at the conclusion of the Chilean centennial. The cruiser Washington will join the Atlantic fleet by way of Cape Horn.

HEART and HOME TALKS by Barbara Boyd

Every mother knows the problem she has on her hands of finding amusement for a household of children on a rainy day. One mother solved it most satisfactorily this summer by holding a picnic in the cellar.

She didn't intend to have a picnic in the cellar. The picnic had been planned for the woods, about a mile distant from the home. The day before had been spent in preparing for it. Sandwiches, cakes, deviled eggs, pies—everything that goes to make a picnic lunch a success—had been prepared in quantity, for there were seven children in the home, two visitors, and the father of the flock to be provided for.

Then it rained. A wall went up from the nine young people, and a silent wall from the mother at the prospect of entertaining the disappointed crowd in the house. Then she thought of the cellar. "Hold the picnic in the cellar," she proposed.

The idea was received with glee. The very novelty of it filled the young people with delight. To the cellar they went, with the lunch baskets and the father, and they never came out of that cellar, except for water, for the entire day. The cellar has a cement floor, and in the center stood a heater. In one corner was a discarded express wagon, also a wheel, the relic of some wagon of the past. The father took this wheel, marked numbers on the floor of the cellar, in-provisions of law remain on the statute books. A Democrat cannot have his name placed on the primary ticket unless there was a Democratic governor voted for the preceding general election. If the Democrats fail to receive the twenty per cent they will have no Democratic candidate at this election, and consequently no Democrat can appear as candidate, either in future primary ballots or as a Democrat on the official ballot at any subsequent general election.

This, of course, is a serious situation, and it is almost incredible that the minority party voters in the State should so little appreciate how serious it is. It is quite possible that if Democratic voters at the primaries shall vote for La Follette it may become impossible for them to have the name of their candidate for governor on the ticket this year or their candidate for mayor of Milwaukee on the ticket when the next municipal election shall be held.

La Follette's Power.

The strength of La Follette is strikingly shown by the fact that every newspaper in Milwaukee has been carrying a display "Senator" of a quarter page declaring that the Senator has not committed himself to any Republican candidate for governor. Nobody signs this advertisement. Nobody except the professional investigator of political conditions could guess who it is that is paying the several hundred dollars for securing publicity for the mere fact that La Follette is not backing any candidate for governor. Of course, one might gather from the headline, "Senator La Follette is not supporting Lewis or McGovern," the impression that the advertisement was inserted by the only other candidate, Mr. E. T. Fairchild. Perhaps it was. Mr. Fairchild's political manager denies it. But to the country at large the significance of the advertisement is that it indicates that in Wisconsin any candidate for governor feels it necessary to announce that Senator La Follette is not supporting either of his adversaries.

Heavy Democratic Support.

Nevertheless, they do think of defeating La Follette. That he is not blind to this threat is shown by his having called to his aid the foremost representatives of

MORNING CHIT-CHAT.

THE end of my space yesterday interrupted me in saying what I'd tell a hypothetical daughter before I let her go on a long journey alone, so I promised to finish it to-day.

So far I have warned her to dress quietly, to be very careful not to laugh or speak loudly, to ask directions of none but officials, to avoid the use of cabs or hacks in unfamiliar cities; if she stopped at a hotel alone, to arrive early in the day and engage the room in advance.

In addition to these directions I should, of course, emphasize the dangers on a five days' journey with the strict instructions to speak to no one, man or woman, except officials. I don't think I'd quite have the heart to do that. Seems to me I'd just have a plain heart to heart talk with her on the dangers that beset a young girl, warn her under no conditions to accept any invitation from a stranger, man or woman, and to limit any acquaintanceship to casual and very dignified conversation.

That she should never drink any kind of liquor, either alone or with any one, while traveling. I should expect her common sense and previous training to tell her for me, but should probably take the precaution to emphasize.

I should try to select any hotel that she was to stop at, but should warn her that if for any reason she had to spend the night in some city whose hotels she did not know, she should consult either the Travelers' Aid or the Young Women's Christian Association for proper accommodations.

If she could not get into touch with either of these, I would tell her to do what a young woman I knew did recently in such a situation. Unforeseen circumstances brought her into a city with which she was entirely unfamiliar at 8 o'clock one evening. She inquired for the Travelers' Aid. There was none. She asked where the Y. W. C. A. had its headquarters. It had none. The conductor of the train had recommended a certain hotel. She went to it, but found it most unimpressive. So instead of taking a room there she inquired the home of the minister of her own denomination, hunted him up, told him her situation, and asked his advice. He recommended a desirable little inn, and she afterward found that the hotel she had at first been sent to was decidedly shady.

And lastly—and here I suppose I shall go against the grain of many of my readers—I should present the traveler with a little steel chaparron—a good revolver.

I think I should have it loaded with blank cartridges. That would preclude any danger to herself, and yet would be quite sufficient to frighten away any one in the unlikely case that such a necessity should arise.

"You would be more afraid of the revolver than anything else?"
Well, if you insist upon feeling that way, there's no use arguing. It's just a suggestion, anyway, you know. RUTH CAMERON.

the insurgent movement in the United States. Dooliver, Victor Murdock, and Gifford Pinchot have been here, but came so late that their influence on the primary election will be negligible. No one that I can discover doubts that the primaries will be carried overwhelmingly by the La Follette forces, but there is an undercurrent of suspicion that the legislature may not accede to the will of the people. There are Democratic Tories here in Wisconsin precisely as there are Republican standpatters. In to-morrow's primaries there will be quite as many Democrats proportionally to the voting strength of that party—voting for La Follette as there will be Republicans. That may sound curious, but it is true. But it is feared that in the legislature the reactionary Democrats will join with the "stalwart" Republicans to defeat the man who to-day is the one great national figure in the State of Wisconsin.

Milwaukee Press Against Him.
The bitterness of the fight on La Follette can hardly be comprehended by any one outside the State. In the historic old Milwaukee Sentinel, a paper that every journalist remembers for its long existence and its unflinching Republicanism, I noticed the other morning a cartoon showing La Follette sneaking into hiding under a bed, with Taft sneering at him for cowardice. The leading editorial in the paper was a savage attack on the Senator. The same tone is ob-servable in the Free Press, which was once strongly in favor of the La Follette programme. But strongly as the press of Milwaukee is against La Follette, it is many times more so against the State legislature which he will be not merely successful, but so thoroughly successful that hardly any other name will appear.

The strongest Democratic candidate in opposition to him is Charles H. Weiss, now a member of Congress. There is a suspicion current that Mr. Weiss has been lured into the fight, which is apparently hopeless, by the suggestion, or possibly the promise, that if La Follette should carry the primary election the conservative, reactionary, or Tory Republican members of the State legislature would cast their votes for Weiss rather than for La Follette.
